Dear Mr. Hicks,

Thank you for giving me the copy of "Kids' Letters to the FBI" along with the thought that a similar book might be put together in relation to the CIA. I appreciate the thought and your purpose in making the suggestion. I thought about it and it strikes me that such a book would be more appropriate from the FBI than the CIA.

I am returning the book with the thought that you are likely to have more use for it than I.

Best regards.

Yours,

William J. Casey

Hon. William Casey
Director, Central Intelligence
Washington, DC 20505

Dear Mr. Casey:

It strikes me that you and the Agency have gotten a bum rap for a number of things recently.

I have an idea that may help counter some of the negative impressions created by the media.

The idea is not new. It dates back to 1966 and a book put together by Bill Adler: "Kids' Letters to the FBI" (copy of which is enclosed and which I would appreciate being returned.)

If you or the Agency receives an adequate number of letters from kids to make this concept feasible and if you agree that it is a valid premise, I would be happy to pursue the matter with you or someone representing you or the Agency.

Sincerely,

Henry H. Hicks
